825 Santa Ray Avenue,

Oakland 10, California,

October 11, 1950.

The Mayor of Carmel,
Carmel, California.

Dear Sir:

Mrs. Bond and I have just returned from a visit to Carmel. We have been going to Carmel for very many years and consider Carmel's big drawback to be the lack of rustic seats placed amongst the trees down Ocean Avenue and other streets, also along the beach. Carmel is wonderfully situated and everybody loves to visit it, but all complain that once you get out of the cars there is no place to recline or rest at the many beauty spots.

Mrs. Bond and I stayed at the Hotel La Ribera and the walk to and from the beach in the hot sun made us decide to cut our visit short; whereas if there had been benches amongst the trees going down to the beach and also down at the beach and other places where we liked to walk, we would have stayed much longer.

If you wish to hear the unfavorable comments of visitors, I suggest you visit the various hotels and sit in the lounge in the evening, and the unfavorable remarks will astound you.

I have visited the Italian and French Rivas, but consider the Monterey Peninsula a most beautiful spot and well worth advertising as the "California Riviera."

I would like to have your comments, and suggest you pass this letter on to your local Chamber of Commerce for their attention.

Yours very truly,
VINCENT BOND.

City of Carmel-by-the-Sea,
Office of the Mayor,
October 16, 1950.

Dear Mr. Bond:

Thank you for your letter of October 11, 1950, regarding rustic benches in Carmel.

I have passed your letter along to the Planning Commission, from whom you will undoubtedly hear.

In regard to the unfavorable comments of visitors, I might say the residents of Carmel regard it as a residential village rather than a tourist attraction.

I heartily agree with you as to its beauty compared to the Italian and French Rivas.

Very truly yours,
Allen Knight, Mayor.

Good for the Mayor!

Also, good for the street department!

With shovels and rakes they are going after the trash, brush and litter along the side streets, thereby improving the general appearance of the town and getting the gutters ready to carry the run-off when the rains come.

—W. C.

POST OFFICE RUMORS

It will not be known until after the October 31 deadline whether bids have been made on a new building or site for a post office, although a number of inquiries on the matter have been made here.

Bells To Ring For Crusade

Carmel will join the nation and many parts of the world in an observance of the Freedom Bell Crusade next Tuesday morning between 9 a.m. and 9:05 a.m. and Carmel's church bells and firebell will ring out in tribute. The nation is asked to bow briefly in silent prayer for world freedom and unity.

The Carmel City Council, in session as The Pine Cone went to press, has been asked to give an official permission for the brief ceremony, but the matter has already been virtually assured by Mayor Allen Knight.

L. M. Gianini, West Coast chairman of the crusade, has sent a communication to all cities notifying them of the ceremony and asking for full cooperation. The Freedom Bell will ring in Western Germany.

The crusade itself has been designed as an educational program for the enlightenment of all suppressed peoples, and contributions by private citizens will be used to expand the radio free network program in Europe.

Young Local Artists Represented In Blair Studio Show

A joint exhibition of paintings by Richard Masten and Fred Pomeroy is now being held at the Blair Studios on Fisherman's Wharf and will continue until November 4.

The young artists, both are 21, are showing oils. Rickey, who is now in Chicago in college, is represented in a variety of canvases, both as to size, type and form.

Pomeroy is a former student at the California School of Fine Arts and is now living in Pacific Grove.

The public is invited to attend the show, which is at 11 Fisherman's Wharf. The Blair Studios maintain a changing exhibit of paintings and sculpture.

Council Meets In Special Session

Carmel's City Council was in session as The Pine Cone went to press. Matters to be brought up:

1. What department should take care of the matter of dead dogs and cats found along city streets.
2. Whether parking fines should be reduced from $2 to $1.
3. An official report from Thomas K. Perry ruling that it would be illegal to exempt the Carmel Art Gallery from city taxes.
4. What to do about Norman Duxbury, Carmel's Communist.
5. New Police Chief to be sworn into office.

BRAMBLETT HERE

Congressman Ernest K. Bramblett, now seeking re-election, was a Carmel visitor Wednesday afternoon, renewing old acquaintances. He later spoke in New Monterey to a group of Monterey Peninsula Republicans.

Who'll Buy Some Cute Gull-Squirrel Signs For Carmel?

The cute street signs with their seagulls and squirrels, approved some time ago by the Planning Commission, will not adorn Carmel's corners unless the citizens or some civic organization provides the purchase money. Police Commissioner Andy Martin brought to light the fact that city funds may not be expended for purchase of signs other than "legal," standardized signs, designed by the state. Since nobody at the planning commission meeting, Wednesday, wanted standardized signs in Carmel, the matter rests.

Plans for a one story building to house three shops on the Patterson property, corner of Lincoln and Seventh, were approved, as were those for an additional building in the Otrich court to house another shop. Because of their attractiveness of design, both plans were commended by the commission.

There was discussion of a letter from a tourist suggesting that more benches be placed along the walk up Ocean Avenue from the beach. Mrs. Keplinger was delegated to look into it.

Carmel Dogs Are Blue Ribbon Winners

Many Peninsula dogs entered in last Sunday's Del Monte Kennel Club Show at Pebble Beach took top honors, with an Afghan hound, Crux Barson de la Crux, being judged both best local dog and best local hound.

Best in the show was an Irish setter belonging to Thomas V. Glover of San Marino. Best local sporting dog was also a setter owned by Ted Ziel of Monterey. Best local working dog was a German shepherd owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Boyer of Carmel Valley. The Welsh terrier owned by Lieut. H. J. Fancier of the Navy Line School won top honors in that class. Best local non-sporting dog was Mrs. Louis N. Luchenbach of Pebble Beach.

New Volume Deals With U. Of C. Loyalty Oath

A subject of more than considerable interest locally and elsewhere is George Stewart's The Year of the Oath, an authoritative and factual account of the required signing of the document by members of the faculty at the University of California.

In May, 1949, the regents at the University issued their demand, which was followed by the refusal of a large number of the faculty. However, during the next 16 months a great many had given way and signed the oath. In April of this year the context of the oath was changed and those who still refused to sign were assured of a hearing before the Academic Senate. The fight is still going on and at present there is a group of 31 who have not been re-employed.

The book was not written by Stewart alone but, rather, is a compilation in both writing and research by 70 faculty members who opposed the oath.

Stewart is the author of two former best sellers, Storm and Fire. He is a frequent visitor to Carmel.

Dr. Anne Martin Invited To Attend White House Meet

An invitation from President Truman was received this week by Dr. Anne Martin to attend the Mid-century White House Conference on Children and Youth to be held in Washington, Dec. 3-7.

Dr. Martin, internationally known as a feminist, writer, leader in the struggle for woman's suffrage, and authority on the feminist movement here and abroad, has recently returned to Carmel from six year's absence in Nevada, where she was given the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws by the University of Nevada with this citation . . .

"Native daughter, distinguished alumna, student and scholar, inspiring teacher, desciple of world peace, pioneer in the triumphant struggle for women's rights, leader of womankind . . ."

Her article on white slave traffic on which she spent a year in Nevada, bringing it up to date at the request of the editors, will be published in the 1951 printing of Encyclopaedia Britannica. It takes the place of the current Britannica article by Dame Rachel Crowley of Great Britain. Dame Rachel was head of the Social Welfare Section of the League of Nations from 1919 to 1930.

Dr. Martin was invited to attend the United Nations meeting in San Francisco, but was unable to accept because of illness. She is in better health now, and told The Pine Cone yesterday she would make the effort to attend the conference in Washington.

First Membership Meeting Held By Youth Center

Election of permanent officers for the Carmel Youth Center will be held next Monday night, it was decided at the organization's first membership meeting held Wednesday night. At that meeting, Bob Uppike was elected president pro tem.

A nominating committee was appointed to select candidates for the offices of president, vice president, secretary-treasurer and historian. Members are Kurt von Meier, June Uppike, Denny Johnson, Mickey McPhail, John Reib and Diane Lewis. Following the election, the various committees will be set up.

Fred Godwin, chief sponsor of the Center, spoke to the group and outlined the history of the organization to the 172 members present. The group also selected the club's colors, which are to be cardinal red and white.

Because it seems that there is confusion as to who is eligible to join the Center, the following was explained:

1. Anyone, boy or girl, living in Carmel who is between the ages of 13 and 21 may join.
  2. Anyone between those ages who attends one of Carmel's schools is eligible, even if he or she is from outlying districts.
- In the future the Center is open only to members, with the exception of those who bring a guest, and for this there will be a charge of 25 cents.

Gift For "Treasure" Auction Boasts Romantic History

Latest additions to the trove of surplus treasures to be auctioned off at the Girl Scout House on Saturday, October 28, to save the River Beach are an original lithograph by Honore Daumier, contributed from the incomparable print collection of Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Adriani of Carmel; a beautiful silver coffee urn around 100 years old, contributed by Mrs. Eloise Dyer; a wine-cooler, approximately 150 years old, bearing the coat of arms of H.M.S. Malabar, contributed by Mrs. Lillian Pace of Pacific Grove.

The wine-cooler, pitcher shaped with a double wall within which ice water was placed to cool the wine, belonged to the great-grandfather of the donor, Captain Francis Barington-Balner, who was a lieutenant on H. M. S. Leviathan at the battle of Trafalgar, and at the age of 21 captured 21 French ships.

One enthusiastic donor to the Save the Beaches Auction collection called the committee, consisting of Mrs. Malcolm Millard and Miss Tillie Polak, into her home, offering them whatever they wished to collect for the auction since the matter of saving the beaches undeveloped and unspoiled lay very close to her heart.

Preview of the auction treasures will be held on Friday, October 27, from 2 to 5 p.m. The auction itself will take place at the Girl Scout House in Carmel, on Lincoln and Sixth, from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday, October 28, with brilliant auctioneers calling turns and beautiful girls modeling contributions, such as Oriental shawls and brocade coats.

From Monday through Thursday of next week the treasures will be collected in the former Health Food Store opposite the Purity Store on Mission street. This space belongs to the May Cleaning Company and has been donated to the Save the Beaches Auction by the May family. Contributions may be brought there between 10 and 12 in the morning, Monday through Thursday.

GIVES LECTURE IN L. A.

Pat Cunningham will give a demonstration of How an Artist Thinks While He Works, at the Los Angeles County Museum tonight, October 20, at 8 o'clock.

Her demonstration, presented here recently under sponsorship of Carmel Evening School, shows the effects of mental attitudes upon form, content, technique and organization. She works from life models, and shows examples of her own painting to illustrate the lecture.

PADRES HOST KING CITY IN LEAGUE OPENER
CCAL B league football action takes place at Carmel High School tomorrow afternoon when the King City Mustangs invade Bardarson Field to test the untried Padres. The local preps have engaged in three practice games this season and haven't been pressed enough to determine whether they have the makings of another champion. However, the rugged Mustangs will provide plenty of opposition for the Padres tomorrow. In the last two weeks, King City upset the potent Atascadero eleven and ran roughshod over Pacific Grove to notch their first league victory. Boasting the hardest running backfield in the CCAL, the Mustangs rely on hard blocking and fierce tackling to wear down the opposition. In Harris, league's best fullback, the visitors have line-busting power up the middle, and around the flanks they throw the speedy Nunes, a triple-threat left halfback.

The Padres put together a versatile offense against San Jose Lick last Saturday and should test the defense set up by King City. The power running of Urdike, Overin, and Moran, augmented by the throwing of Stu Emery should provide interesting opposition for the rugged Mustangs. Last week against Pacific Grove, King City held the Breakers to a net of 16 yards while rushing and passing for 300 yards themselves.

In tomorrow's 12:30 preliminary tussle, the Padre lightweights will tangle with the King City Babes. Coach Leavitt's lads have been absorbing King City offensive patterns during the past week and should know what to expect from the Ponies. Lightweight kickoff time, 12:30; varsity, 2:15.

PADRES BEAT SAN JOSE, 53-14
Clicking with offensive power on the ground and in the air, the Carmel High School varsity had little difficulty with an inexperienced James Lick eleven last Saturday afternoon. Driving for scores the first three times they had the ball, the Padres had game control from the opening kickoff. Behind the knockdown blocking of Rasmussen, Burger, Daniels, and May, Carmel backs, Overin, Urdike, Moran, Wolverton, and Stoney romped for huge chunks of yardage on the ground. When the ground attack was stymied, quarterback Emery took to the air lanes and polished up the Padre forward passing attack. Receivers, Reimers, Frans Doelman, Hans Doelman, Urdike, and Stoney had a field day latching onto aerials falling around the loose San Jose pass defense. Although outmanned, the San Jose eleven never quit trying and rolled through the Padres for a pair of touch downs, one in the third quarter and one in the fourth period. Longest run of the afternoon was turned in by Jim Moran, Carmel Fullback, who broke loose for 65 yards and a touchdown.

In an abbreviated preliminary joust, the Serra Memorial school of Monterey squeaked by the Carmel Babes, 20 to 14. This was strictly an offensive battle with neither team showing much of a defense. The Serra boys scored on their first series of plays and Leavitt's lads returned the compliment when they got their hands on the ball. There was an even trade of touchdowns in the third period and the visitors iced the contest in the short fourth period. Ron Wolverton and Ray March racked up the six-pointers for Carmel, while Stoney Brunow as the big gun in the Serra attack.

SUNSET WINS FIRST HALF IN YOUTH CENTER GRIDIRON

With a record of one win and two ties, the scrappy Sunset touch football artists latched onto first half honors in the Youth Center league. The Sunset sprouts dumped Appleton's Gray Eights and tied Serra and Nielson's Red Eights. It took a 45 yard run by Grimm Mason to earn the Sunsetters a tie with the fast-improving Serra gang. Mason whipped around end on a tricky reverse and outran the secondary for the big six. Danny Brosnan and his Serra mates staged a game comeback to gain the deadlock. Bill McCormick, speedy Serra halfback intercepted a Sunset pass and raced 25 yards for the score.

Next Wednesday Sunset tangles with Nielsens Reds and, on Thursday, Serra tests Appleton's Grays.

LOBOS TRIP SF CITY COLLEGE

Dispensing with the intercollegiate football rules and substituting Marquis of Queensbury regulations, the Monterey Peninsula College and San Francisco City College football teams battled through four rounds of rough bruising action last Saturday night at Cox Stadium, San Francisco. The big difference between the two teams was the terrific open field running of Al Mathews, Monterey fullback. Two long-gainers by the shifty Mathews went the distance in the first quarter and the Lobos were in front to stay.

Post-game ceremonies included a free for all riot engaged in by players, officials, coaches, school administrators, and some of San Francisco's finest. Fights of this type are good for football, if you are interested in seeing football dropped as a major sport in our educational institutions.

For that ideal fall and winter date and general party dress, THE COLLEGIATE SHOP has the perfect little number—Taffeta, and it comes in three colors, bright red, black, and winter white, with black lace inserts forming pet cap sleeves and a yoke around the collar. For that sparkling effect there are rhinestones cleverly dotted on the lace. The collar, by the way, is a small tailored one coming to points in front. And the price for this creation? Only $9.95! Can you believe it? You'd better make your purchase soon before they're all gone. THE COLLEGIATE SHOP is located on Alvarado street.

THE CINDERELLA SHOP has some wool jersey dresses on its racks, something you can't do without no matter where you are. The star is a two-tone dress with an elasticized waist that stretches or shrinks to fit any waist (and doesn't alter when cleaned, either). Colors are gray and red, green and beige, chartreuse and purple and so forth. But you'll find all types at THE CINDERELLA SHOP—polka dots, stripes and checks. There's even a black and white check with velvet trim—sooo smart! Try on some lovely shades of gray blue combined with navy blue, becoming to just any coloring. All dresses have bracelet-length sleeves, and start at $19.95.

P.S. They have some half sizes, too, for those who are hard to fit!

HARRIET DUNCAN is featuring the perfect "fireside chat" outfit or after ski dress. They're imported Swiss Shellis wool jersey blouses and skirts. The blouses have three-quarter length sleeves. If you want to buy them separately, the blouses are wonderful with HARRIET DUNCAN's black Juillard velveteen skirt, $12.95. As for the skirts, they would go with practically any top. Blouses and skirts come in stunning shades—warm red, leaf green and winter white, all with and adorable little bag-pipe pattern in yellow on them. Combine top and bottom and make the perfect cool weather peasant outfit.

For that spookiest time of the year, Hallowe'en of course, HOLMAN'S TOY DEPARTMENT has some cute new decorations for those kiddie parties you're going to be forced into! Jack O'Lanterns made out of light plastic come complete with flashlight bulb, battery and handle for carrying out-of-doors. So decorate for your party with materials from HOLMAN'S TOY DEPARTMENT this year.

At HOLMAN'S BOOK DEN this week are several very worthwhile items for all of you. First we find A Fearful Joy by Joyce Cary, published by Harper and Bros. It is a bizarre love story and Tabitha and Bouser will be memorable additions to the gallery of contemporary fictional characters. The New York Times says of Mr. Cary "A rare writer indeed of our times—a sure-footed non-conformist."

Nobel Essence by Sir Osbert Sitwell is the fifth and final volume of one of the richest and most versatile biographies of our times.

3 Color Pictures Of Woods School In Life Magazine

Three color pictures of Carmel Woods School are in the current issue of Life magazine, which contains a special feature of American schools.

Captions on the Woods school cuts read: "Play areas of Carmel Woods School, Carmel, Calif., open off classrooms which are shielded from direct sun by roof overhang, have two window walls and are lighted in center by window strip in roof."

"Classrooms of Carmel Woods have child-size chairs and tables with removable legs so their height can be changed. The outdoor feeling of the big window is enhanced by plants growing inside and out."

"School Garden, used to study the growth of plants, is tended by fourth graders in their play area at Carmel Woods. Whole building is best suited to a mild climate, would be impractical in colder places."

Not since the Brontes has England produced such great writers as Edith, Osbert and Sacheverell Sitwell. Now, in his last volume in their lives Sir Osbert has devised a portrait gallery of the notable artists of his time.

Back is the rather startling title of Henry Green's latest book. Fans of Mr. Green will remember his previous works—Loving, and Nothing and in this one will find a delightful story of a man's return from war "to find everything the same and at the same time different."

Hallowe'en Card Party Planned For Benefit Peninsula Pets

A Hallowe'en card party will be held at the Carmel Woman's Club, San Carlos at Ninth, on Wednesday afternoon, October 25, beginning at 2 o'clock for the benefit of Peninsula Pets, Inc.

There is no endowment for Peninsula Pets; it is dependent upon the contributions of animal-loving persons. All workers are voluntary. There are no paid workers in the organization. Funds are low at the present time and it is hoped there will be a good attendance at the card party. Prizes will be given for each table and plenty of good homemade refreshments. Bridge or canasta or any game may be played. Admission $1.00. Further information may be had by calling Carmel 7-4580.

Peninsula Pets, Inc., may be reached by calling 7-7569 Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays between the hours of 1 to 4 in the afternoon. ## The Time Has Come ..

By Kippy Stuart

Pruning a garden is a simple operation . . . and I might add—by way of being facetious—that is, if you know how. There are only a few simple rules about cutting back shrubs and trees and anyone can do this provided they know what and why they are cutting. The main idea in pruning is to allow sunlight to penetrate to the heart of the bush; the second idea is to prune a bush for form and for shape. That's all.

Those who go about whacking everything into balls and round stage-pieces are only harming their plants. The compact round shrub is bound to have a heart of dead wood and dead wood asks for scale and all the other pests. Just open your bush before starting to prune. Look down to the very roots and see the tangle and mess of old and useless wood. Lay your clippers at the base of some of those age-old canes and cut at the roots. Thin the bush out and always remember, the main object in pruning is to allow sunlight to penetrate the middle. After you have removed many of the tightly held canes, stand back and view your shrub with the artist's eye. How do you want this particular shrub to grow? Do you want a tall, graceful plant? If so, cut away the low-lying branches so the bush can raise itself to the height you wish; if you want a low, compact bush, cut back the leaders that are reaching for the sky, but above all, don't just whack the thing into a round ball.

Trees follow this same pattern. Cut out some wood in the center of the tree and watchfully that you do not damage the new wood that has developed this past year. Always go after the old canes of last year and many years before. You can identify new wood by its young bark; old wood will have a crinkled and grey appearance and the old wood is of no use to the gardener.

Fuchsias may be pruned back any time now up to February. I prune my patio fuchsias back in November, merely as a convenience to myself. If I allow the fuchsias to remain until they themselves wish to go to sleep, it means that the litter of falling leaves keeps me housekeeping my patio ad nauseum. So, I cut them back, and when it comes to fuchsias, I cut all lateral branches right smack back to the main stem. This leaves only the scaffold of the main branches, and I must say that I refuse to be cheated out of a season just because I live in this never-never-land of perpetual gardens. I like to see spring manifest itself on the bare branches, and that is the way I handle my fuchsias.

But you can do as you please about fuchsias. You may prune them back now or you may leave them until the first of February. Roses are another matter. It is better to wait until complete dormancy of rose bushes comes about and this happens in this vicinity in January and early February. Climbing roses should be pruned back to five or six inches, for the more you prune a rose bush, the more it will bloom. Don't be tender-hearted when pruning roses for they are screaming to be readied for the coming spring. Keep the new canes that developed this past year and cut off all lateral branches. The thing will look like a skeleton, but maybe you would too, if you had all your branches cut off.

TO DISCUSS BRONTE BOOK

The writing class of the Carmel Adult School next Tuesday evening, Mrs. Glenn Clairmonte will speak of the new book about the Bronte Sisters before discussing manuscripts. Everybody interested in good literature is invited to sit at the conference table in Room 11 of Sunset School from 7:30 to 9:00 o'clock. Those wishing free criticism of their manuscripts should mail them to Mrs. Clairmonte before the class meeting.

Military Asks Greater Donations For Blood Bank

The Regional Blood Bank, of which Monterey County is a part, has been asked by the military to double or even to triple the amount of blood now being donated.

In view of the vast quantities of blood needed for the Korean front, all who are able to give are most urgently requested to do so.

O-type, or universal donors, are particularly requested to contact Red Cross and make an appointment for next Thursday, Oct. 26, when the mobile unit will make its monthly scheduled visit to Monterey. This type blood is processed and immediately flown overseas.

Army Language School students have requested the opportunity of giving blood, and a group of them will be processed at the forthcoming collection.

Volunteer firemen from Carmel Valley will also be represented, making donations to replace blood used by one of their members in surgery in San Francisco.

A reciprocal agreement has now been worked out, whereby local persons, needing blood in other localities, may borrow from their blood banks, and have it replaced locally, without charge.

Forgotten Cigarette Blamed For Fire

The fire suppression crew from the Carmel Hill station of the State Forestry Service was called at 6:00 a.m. Tuesday morning to extinguish a fire at the home of H. H. Waters at San Pedro Lane in Carmel Woods.

The fire, which caused about $200 worth of damage to a bed, mattress, coverings and a rug, was believed to have been caused by a forgotten cigarette.

A QUEER FAMILY

There was an old woman long, long ago,
And all she could do was sew, sew, sew.

Her husband was a very, queer old man.
All he could do was dig in the sand.

They had a very funny, little dog
And all he could do was chase the fog!

—Carlyn Hager.

A HALLOWE'EN STORY

A queer gloom crept over the little town of Hoover Banwaskitan. It was Hallowe'en and I lived right next to the cemetery, but I wasn't scared of ghosts.

It was around midnight and I was stumbling down the cellar stairs. I was going to close a window. It had been knocked loose somehow. There was a sharp wind that night and it had started the window banging, and that's what woke me up.

I was halfway down when with a loud bang the door closed. All at once I felt a cold hand on my shoulder. I jumped! Then there was a flash of light and I saw someone holding a candle. I looked closer and I saw it was a skeleton. I forgot all about not believing in ghosts and ran toward the door, but I bumped into a pirate!

I ran to the window, climbed climbed out, and went over to a friend's house and tried to get some sleep.

Next morning when I woke up, my friend said, "How did you like the costume party I put on last night?"

—Buzzy Richardson.

Alone for the first time in a city...and no one to meet her. Then teen-age Jane, nearly in tears, saw a telephone.

THE DAY JANE DAWSON NEEDED A FRIEND

(And found Telephone Operator 11)

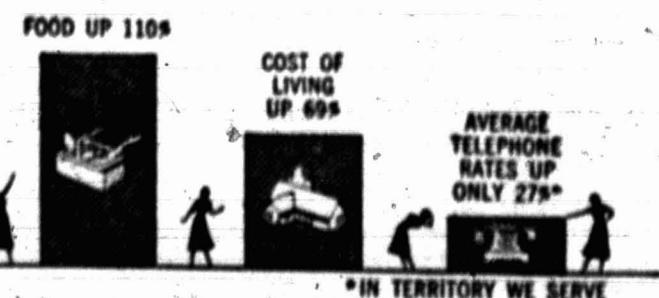

1. One of the first calls Operator 11 handled that quiet Sunday was from a public telephone in Union Station. "I missed my train connection and I've just got to reach my brother Mike," said a small voice. "He's with the Navy in Port City but I don't know how to call him." Operator 11 had heard such voices before. And as she said, "We'll find him," she was ringing an operator forty miles away.

3. An unusual story? Not at all. We get many letters telling how our operators do their best to get the call through...no matter what. And we hear good reports about our linemen, installers, service representatives and others who meet the public directly. We like to receive these letters. For they tell us that you recognize "the spirit of service"...so much a part of telephone work...so important in making your telephone ever more valuable to you.

2. Didn't take Mike long to reach his sister after he'd been paged at the Port City station where he was nervously waiting. After he'd picked her up, Jane said, "That operator was so understanding. I don't know what I would have done." And later on her mother thanked Operator 11 in a letter to us which ended..."and I'd like to pin a medal on her. I'll never meet that operator. But she is our friend."

National Park Director Approves Beach Project

The current project to place the beaches in the vicinity of Point Lobos into the custody of the City of Carmel meets the full approval of Newton B. Drury, director of the National Park Service, Department of the Interior.

Drury, a recent visitor in Carmel met informally with Mrs. Malcom Millard, Frances Whitaker and others interested in the project.

"I surely hope that this enterprise succeeds," Drury said. "I have seen practically all of the western sea coast and a good part of that in the East, as well as the Gulf Coast, and I know of no more beautiful region than the Carmel country and the Monterey Peninsula."

Drury, speaking of the work accomplished by his department, cited several different instances of threats to national monuments which have been averted. One of them was the decision by the Army and the Department of the Interior to abandon the Glacier View Dam project in Montana from plans for development of the Columbia Basin, which would have flooded nearly 20,000 acres of wilderness in Glacier National Park.

He pointed out that national parks are essential to the American people, inasmuch as they were visited by 32,000,000 people last year. This year the number is expected to be even higher.

Frances Cummings Taken By Death

Mrs. Frances Cummings, resident of Robles del Rio for the past two months, died at her home Monday night following an illness of a few days.

Mrs. Cummings, who was 38 years old, was a native of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

The T. A. Dorney Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements, which are pending.

Militant Atheism Greatest Threat To Civilization, Says Arnold Lunn

Not Communism so much as militant atheism is the great danger to civilization today, according to Arnold Lunn, author, lecturer, and world traveler, who spoke in Sunset Auditorium Friday night, sponsored by the Catholic Daughters of Monterey Peninsula, on the subject, The Two Internationals, Rome and Moscow. In the huge area ruled by the Russian Soviet, extending from the Danube river to Behring straits, Catholics, Protestants, and Jews have been savagely persecuted and liquidated by the thousands, and in addition all intellectuals—scientists, educators, leaders of the people are being suppressed if they do not conform to the Marxist-Stalinist line.

Catholics, said Mr. Lunn, did not accept the Russian protestations of peaceful intentions early in the war, and consequently were not disillusioned as were U. S. and British government officials by Russian blocking of allied efforts for peace and cooperation in the past five years. He pointed to the Spanish civil war in the 1930's and the struggles in Greece after World War II as examples of Communist methods for taking over the government of another country. As is happening now in Korea, when the fifth column or local Communists fail in their attempt, Russia drops them, disclaiming any responsibility.

The lecturer spent much of his time outlining the works of Catholics—priests, nuns, and laymen—throughout the war in promoting resistance to the nazis, and since 1946 in withstanding Red aggression in the weaker countries. Even in the predominantly Protestant countries—The Netherlands, Denmark, Norway, and in neutral Sweden—Catholics were active in aiding escape of patriots and in

Janice Goodwin

Her many friends in Carmel and the Peninsula will be deeply shocked to learn of the sudden death of Janice Albee Goodwin in espionage for the allied forces. In France and Italy particularly, since the end of the war, has the effort of Catholics prevented the Reds from taking over.

Catholicism is a way of life, he said, a means of conserving a culture, civilization, and its importance in resisting the militant atheism of Russia can hardly be overestimated. A fairly large audience heard the address and asked many questions at the close.

San Francisco last Saturday morning. Death was due to a heart attack. She was 39 years of age.

Mrs. Goodwin lived on the Peninsula for a number of years. Her husband, Robert, was a construction engineer for some time with the Stanton architectural offices here.

Besides her husband she is survived by a month old son, Robert Paul; a sister, Mrs. Spiers Ruskell of Carmel; her mother, Mrs. Jack Haertel of Hollywood and four brothers, Paul Rodney, Jack and Guy of Hollywood and Kenneth Kerr of Waukesha, Wisconsin.

Want a long run for your money?

Better Buy Buick!

YOU want a new car to be tops in things like style and room and comfort and power——and a thrill-packed fifteen minutes with the nimble number pictured here will show you it has all these things in abundant measure.

So you ask us—how about money? What does it cost to buy a Buick—and to own one?

All right—let us ask you some questions.

Take first cost. Do you know that Buick prices start down at a level below what you'd pay for some sixes—and that every Buick, on a cents-per-pound basis, is a standout buy?

Take operating cost. Do you know that the bang you'll get from Buick's Fireball power comes from a valve-in-head engine—recognized by engineers as a thrifty saver of fuel?

Do you know that owners of 1950 Buicks are writing us rave letters, saying that this year's version is the most economical Buick ever built?

Do you know that such comfort features as coil springs on all four wheels protect the car as well as the passengers—and throw in an extra saving because they need no servicing, and are practically breakproof to boot?

Do you know that Dynaflo*—in addition to keeping you fresh as a daisy on a day-long drive—caps its convenience with savings on tires, cuts down the strain on transmissions and engines—and eliminates all friction clutch repairs, because it hasn't any?

Take final cost. Do you know that when the owner of a Buick gets a yen for a later model, the prices that Buicks command on a used-car lot are the ultimate proof of their long-run value?

So if you want a real run for your money, better buy Buick. And the first step is very simple: Go see your Buick dealer—soon—and get an order signed. ☺

Artist's Autobiography

BY ABEL G. WARSHAWSKY

As main objective we made for Treboul, a tiny fishing village within two kilometers of Douarnenez. From this center we could make daily visits to the colorful spots of this primitive land which David had hitherto seen only in our canvases.

David and Alex did the driving. By special favor, and with much coaxing, I was allowed to drive the car when the road was clear, and we were secure from the traffic of the cities. The amount of criticism and advice to which I was subjected by my brothers was sufficient to have made a Barney Oldfield of me. My slightest deviation from the rules and code of the route elicited such harsh remarks that finally I observed many expert autoists and truck drivers were perhaps no more intelligent than I, and that, if they exercised a little patience I, too, might learn to drive. My sarcasm, however, had little effect on their fraternal minds, and I was, perforce, obliged to retire to the back of the car with my sister-in-law, Berthe.

In passing through some of the quaint villages David, to whom all this was new, would break forth in enthusiastic exclamations of praise. Invariably, however, Alex would say, "Just wait, this is nothing." And until the very end of the trip he kept David in a constant state of expectancy for ever greater wonders and scenic marvels.

The tiny hotel at Treboul, overlooking the Bay of Dournenez, housed us only for the evening. Up at early dawn we took a chill dip in the water, followed by a hasty breakfast, then off in our eight "dog-powered" car, as David called it, on one of our innumerable excursions.

The nearby town of Douarnenez offered us moments of colorful delight, marred, perhaps, by the inevitable smells native to the fishing industry.

Eventually came word from old painter friends that we must come down to Concarneau. They had penned glowing pictures of its picture possibilities. Accordingly, this became the next battleground for my brush and palette.

A first sight of Concarneau, if favored with the late afternoon light, is unique and startling in its beauty. The tunny fleet at harbor, a forest of masts gilded by the sun, with multi-colored sails and gaily painted hulks, lines the moss-grown quays. The near vision of medieval walls and towers of the ancient town, and the populace of sailors clad in faded red and blue canvas, interspersed with the Breton women folk in sober black, relieved only by the white accents of their coiffes, is picturesque and colorful.

As at Martigues all available space lining the water front and the overlooking windows were peopled by enthusiastic wielders of the brush. Sailors and fisher folk jostled in and out at their various duties, but never interfered with or annoyed by their curiosity the painters who were as traditional to the port as much a part of Concarneau as the fishermen themselves.

For decades the Hotel des Voyageurs had been a favorite residence for American painters during their stay there. Charles Fromuth, Alexander Harrison, "Shorty" Lasar, and Lionel Walden stayed there in the olden days; and now the terrace for the evening aperitif found Cameron Burnside, Jerome Blum, Charles Basing, Sig Skow, and many others I had frequently seen at the Dome. Though claiming New York as his residence, Sigurd Skow had been coming to Concarneau every summer for perhaps 15 years with classes of American art students. The sight of boats and the smell of salt water awakened within him the old ancestral Viking blood. His English retained a strong Norwegian accent which betrayed his Scandinavian birth. The studio he had acquired in the outskirts of the town was furnished in fine taste with old Breton furniture which he had from time to time dis-

THE HOROSCOPE

*Please tell the baby this is it:
The neuter pronoun on the plain,
Where distance from the Word begets
Despair, equivocation, and distress.*

*If from the beginning to the end,
From bitter birth to happy death,
I see a lamentable horoscope,
Please tell the baby not to cry.*

*Tell the baby: by a golden rule
The Scorpion on The Scales outweighs
The clumsy and lascivious Ram:
The Virgin weeps: and all the Fish*

*In the confining bowl must swim
Around their vision of the tides,
Enchanted by the ancient Sea-goat
And the wandering, menstrual moon.*

*The Twins astride the Bull shall die
Before their perilous journey ends,
And all The Waterbearer's tears
Shall not refill the empty jar.*

*Tell the baby to distrust The Crab
Who lurks beneath the crannied rock;
And in the night beware the eyes
Which peer into the mind asleep*

*And watch the soul in terror fly
Before the angry, leaping Lion,
Down narrow corridors of fear
To nowhere in the quiet room.*

*And please tell the baby: tender
And green is the young leaf,
Tender the fur in the fawn's ear, covered while rummaging through various parts of Brittany; and his collection of ships models must have proved of value to one who employed the arts of a marine painter. He had planned on giving up his American residence altogether and spending his remaining days here. Unfortunately, he met with a tragic end before he could realize his dreams.

At night the cafes were literally jammed with the sailors, starved for the lights, the amusements, and the questionable gayeties of the port after weeks, perhaps months, at sea in their boats. Closing time found them reeling and zig-zagging in their clattering sabots through the streets, and it became a mystery of ever-increasing proportions to me how they returned safely to their ships without falling overboard and being drowned.

One of the most popular resorts along the quays was owned by plump and comfortable Madame Eveno and her more than rotund partner in connubial bliss, Louis. Their wharfside cafe, close by the Hotel des Voyageurs, was very popular with the younger American art students, many of whom boarded there. Though the rooms were primitive and not too clean the food was excellent and prices correspondingly low. Many of the boys stayed on even though their funds ran out, but Madame Eveno would extend them credit, relying on their honesty to send their payments after they had returned to America.

Concarneau was fortunate in having Monsieur Jacques Toiret as mayor in which capacity he served for 20 years. His personal salary and much of his own private fortune has been devoted to the alleviation of the poverty and sickness of his fellow townsmen. He is Breton by adoption only, as he was a Parisian by birth. His wife, a beautiful Swedish woman, accomplished and charming, is equally beloved for her tact and kindness. Both Monsieur and Madame Toiret are noted for their hospitality and kindness to painters, especially Americans. On several occasions we were invited to their home for dinners and concerts. Their walls attest their popularity. For they are hung with many canvases inscribed to them in grateful appreciation by painters of international reputation from perhaps every corner of the world.

There are no idlers in Concarneau. While the men are at sea fishing, the women are busily employed in the huge canning factories. Here sardines and tunny fish are prepared for a world market. The smells attending from the factories and nearby quays, especially the latter, when the tide was out, made me think of the more southerly and perfumed waters of Martigues. Alexander Harrison had renamed Concarneau, baptizing it for its pervasive odors, "Cardineopolis." On a first visit there with me Monte Glass took an evening walk when the tide was far out. I advised him bravely to take three deep breaths and, if he survived the inhalations, he could consider himself inoculated and find himself forever immune from the perfumed airs of Concarneau. It is surprising how quickly one may become habituated and overcome prejudices in a like case.

When the fishing haul was good it seemed that the entire female population would be mobilized at the canning factories. Despite the hard labor their pay was ridiculously low, but outside of knitting there seemed to be no other employment available.

Often it was my good fortune successfully to persuade some of the elderly dames to pose for me. La vieille Quittio, known, it seems, to generations of artists, frequently sat for me. Her face, full of humor and intelligence, resembled the mask of Voltaire. While posing she would comment on the different current events, and retail the gossip and scandal of the village. A portrait which I did of her was reproduced on the cover of the August number of the Literary Digest of 1930. When she received a copy of this number from me her face lit up with pride at the thought that her portrait had been chosen and printed in colors on the cover of a magazine.

Harriet Lane Levy, An Appreciation

A few weeks ago Carmel lost one of its most distinguished citizens, Harriet Lane Levy. She was the author of that delightful book, 920 O'Farrell Street, which brought her fame in the last years of her life. This lively, poignant story of her childhood in early San Francisco gave great joy to all her contemporaries, who both laughed and winced at her sympathetic and sardonic glimpses of family life. She later became part of one of the most distinguished groups of the century, including Gertrude Stein, Matisse, Picasso, etc. But apart from her many gifts, Miss Levy was a person one could never forget. The little drawing by Matisse, made in Paris years ago, shows her as she was then, dark-eyed, earnest and brilliant. But it is as an aging woman of wit and charm that those of us who knew her here remember her best.

To spend an hour with Miss Levy at her hotel apartment was an event of singular importance to the spirit. The sunny room facing the west, filled with flowers and works of art surrounded the little rugged figure sitting in a low chair looking up at the visitor with warmth and expectation. All her strength and inner stature were evident the moment one looked at her. Her hands were delicate and listless, as in the clever portrait of her by Helen Salzi, the hands of one who had always been served, but in her face there was an ageless power, capable, earnest and confident.

She loved to talk; she "loved to talk about herself," (a phrase which she used for the title of her witty, wise little book of poems), but when she did, she thereby talked about everybody. For she had attained the ability to see herself objectively and without emotion. She knew herself to a degree which was remarkable, and in knowing herself she knew humanity.

As the conversation proceeded one would become aware that ideas were presenting themselves to you from within, growing and expanding under the sun of her eager appreciation. If you were not very careful you would be tempted beyond your depth and then Miss Levy would look away in a moment and say "no, I don't understand." You would suddenly realize that you didn't understand very well either. This honesty, this clear integrity in the search for truth was the key-note of her character. Over and above and beyond this firm centre her wit and gaiety sparkled and splashed, making the occasion unforgettable. She drew out from everyone the essence of what they were, so that she freed her friends from their own misconceptions of themselves. How slyly she could do this, and with what deep perception!

The art of waiting constantly fascinated her. Although she had perfected that art, as any reader of "920 O'Farrell Street" can see, she had the greatest curiosity and almost humility concerning it. She had particular reverence for "le mot juste." "Where does it come from?" She would say. "How does it arrive in the mind?"

Miss Levy's little book of epigrammatical poems, published in 1947 by the Grabhorn Press, contains many instances of her skillful use of words. Her phrases are adroit and well-shaped. The sentences are quotable and deftly turned, imbued with a rich humor. One of the most irresistible of the little poems beginning:

"What'll I, What'll I, What'll I do? They say the Lord God isn't true; . . . has been quoted so often that it has become, among her friends, part of the language.

The originality of her poems was also evident in the drawings which she did in her later years. Here the observer found the same lines of wit and happy 'accident'.

But beyond all her gifts there was in Miss Levy a deeply religious spirit. Although her taste was eclectic she had an undeviating sense of direction in her search for truth. She had moreover the ability to carry her humor into high places without sacrificing to the least degree the reverence she always felt for that which is real and everlasting. She will be deeply missed by all those who were privileged to know her.

Wanted—by Almost Half the People!

According to a recent widespread survey—almost half the motor car owners in the United States would choose a Cadillac, if they had their unrestricted choice.

This is, of course, a tremendous tribute to Cadillac, and to those who have designed it so well and built it so soundly for so long a time. But we think it is, equally, a tribute to the American people themselves.

Only a small percentage of American motorists have ever driven a Cadillac—or even enjoyed a ride in one.

But that has not hindered the public from sensing the soundness of the Cadillac ideal—or from giving its wholehearted approval to the Cadillac crusade for quality. Where the effort is worthy—the American people approve.

We regret exceedingly that not every one who wants a Cadillac can own one. But we believe, sincerely, that many have needlessly denied themselves the pleasure.

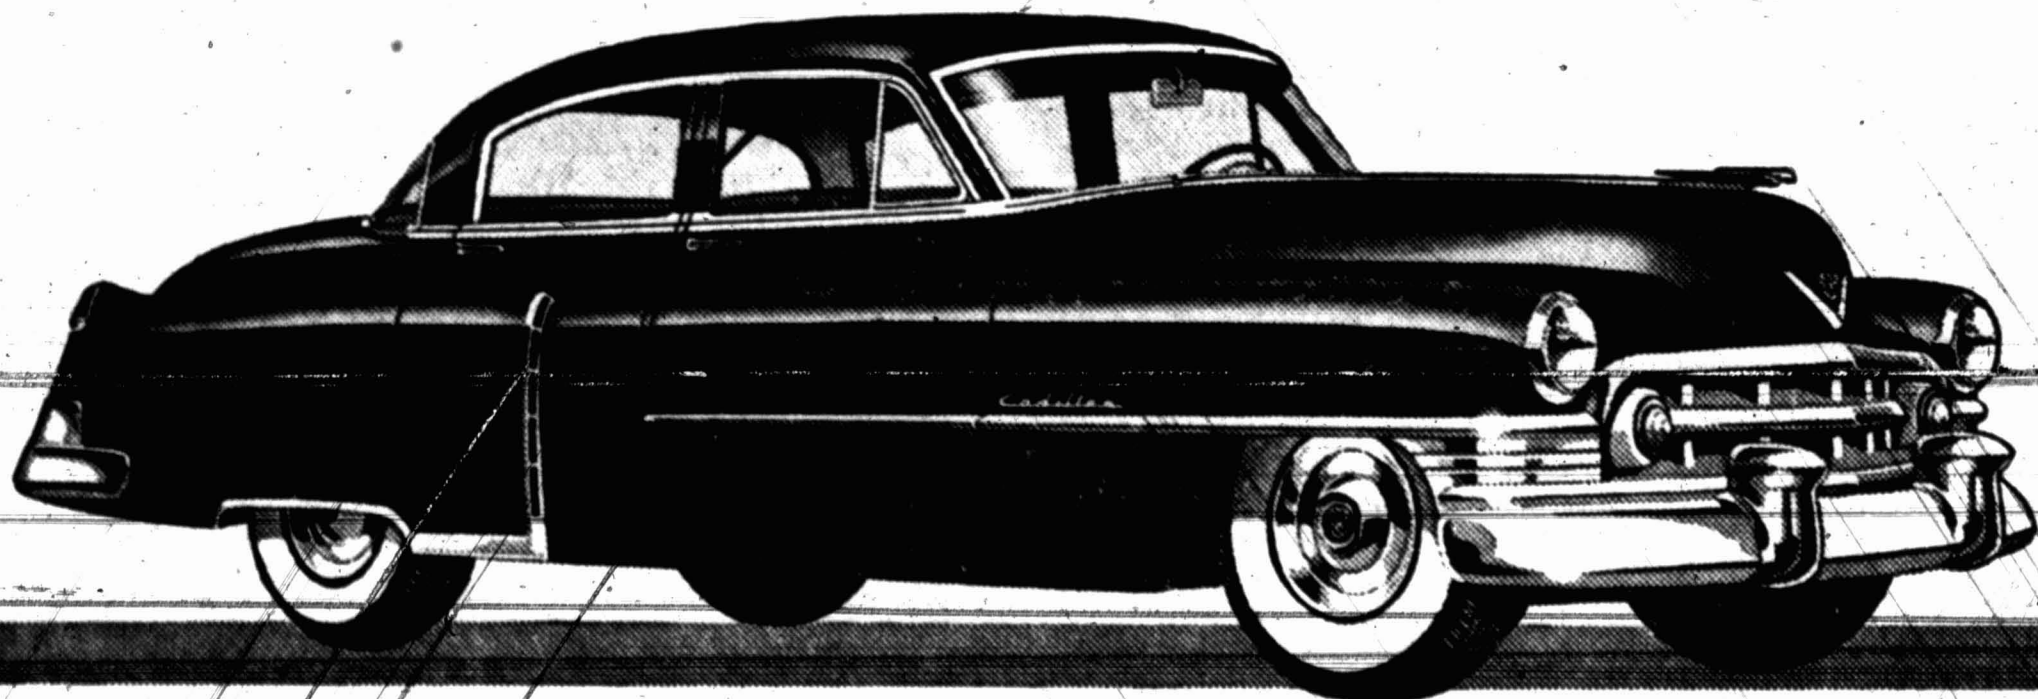

Cadillac cars are far more practical and economical to own than most people realize.

It costs less to buy the lower-priced Cadillacs than it costs to buy certain models of numerous other makes of cars.

Furthermore, a single tankful of gasoline will usually suffice for a whole day's drive.

And, of course, when it comes to endurance, a Cadillac stands alone—for its life-span has never been fully measured.

Yes, for a wide group of people, a Cadillac car is a sensible, practical buy. We hope sincerely that it is for you.

Natural Resources Mismanagement Causes Destruction Of Wild Life Says Maslowski In Audubon Lecture

Essentials for wild life are food, water and cover. Man has so mismanaged our natural resources that wild creatures have had great difficulty in maintaining themselves, Karl H. Maslowski told a large audience at the first Audubon Screen Tour of the season at Sunset Auditorium Saturday night.

He was introduced by Ferdinand Ruth, who was on the peninsula for the week end and who pointed to the Audubon Society as the most important conservation body in the United States.

The films gave interesting glimpses into the life of the little people—frogs, salamanders, butterflies and moths, birds of many kinds, and the natural areas where they persist despite man's desecration, even destruction of their cover. Beautiful autumn forests of Ohio, wild flowers and the insects that fertilize them, tiny fish and their struggle to elude their enemies, field mice and their cleverly concealed nests, birds feeding their young, preceded films showing the tragic struggle of small cottontail rabbits caught in a flood, some of them successful, others failing to make their way to higher ground and safety.

The hazards which farm machinery brings to small animals and even to large birds on their nests in grain fields, crippling the mother and destroying the eggs and the young, and the terrible waste to life and natural resources caused by preventable forest and grass fires brought out one phase of the study and conservation efforts of the Audubon Society in its national program.

At a special meeting Monday night of Carmel city officials, Point Lobos League members and others, there was complete, though unofficial, agreement on the acquisition of the Carmel River beach lands by the city in a protectorate capacity.

Francis J. Roney, state park lands purchasing officer, told the group that the State is eager to lease the land at a nominal sum. Such acquisition would assure that the beach land would be kept in its present primitive and unspoiled state with neither picnic tables or other concessions.

City Attorney Thomas K. Perry was delegated to confer with county officials to discuss the possibility of a joint lease.

C. Edward Graves To Show Slides Of Dinosaur Monument

It may seem a far cry from the last sleep of the giant lizards in northwest Colorado, in the wilderness where the Dinosaur National Monument is situated, to the beach at the mouth of Carmel River. But the lagoon of fresh water, with rushes and reeds, is one of California's assets to save native bird life from extermination. C. Edward Graves, of Carmel, an experienced photographer of wild life, spent summer months this year in the wilderness territory where the dinosaurs ranged. He will show colored slides at the regular monthly meeting of Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society, in Room 11, Sunset School, Carmel, on Friday evening October 20. The Wilderness Society, with national headquarters in Washington, D.C., is seeking to interest organizations like the Audubon Society in the need to save the nation's heritage of untrodden reserves, where bird life and forest denizens can find shelter and sanctuary. Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society is likewise behind the Lobos League effort to save the natural beauty of the seafront south of the Point to Lobos State Park. Public interest is cordially invited in this public-spirited endeavor to safeguard North America's birthright of natural beauty from generation to generation.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Probation after Death" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, October 22. The Golden Text is taken from James: "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him" (1:12).

Included in other citations from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key from the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, comprising the sermon, will be the following:

1 Corinthians 15:55-57: "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Science and Health: "A demonstration of the facts of Soul in Jesus' way resolves the dark visions of material sense into harmony and immortality. Man's privilege at this supreme moment is to prove the words of our Master: 'If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death'" (p. 428).

Home From 8-Week Trip

Combining work with pleasure is very enjoyable, say Dr. and Mrs. Robert R. Aurner, who returned to Carmel a week or so ago from a business-vacation trip.

The transcontinental drive took them to Washington, D.C. for a week in Rehoboth Beach in Delaware and then to the South. They stopped in Rawley, North Carolina, to visit with Dr. Aurner's sister, Mrs. Charles C. Fabb. After other stops here and there, the Aurners went to the University of Iowa, in Iowa City, to see Dr. Aurner's mother, Professor Nellie S. Aurner.

Professor Aurner, who teaches English literature, was in Carmel last year, and was the guest speaker before Mrs. Glenn Clairmonte's class. She spoke on the Theory and Technique of Mystery Stories.

The business part of the trip came when the Aurners got in touch with several concerns in connection with cellucotton, paper and other products. They covered 9,000 miles altogether, and enjoyed every inch of them.

Bob Aurner graduated from Fresno State, August 31, receiving his Bachelor of Arts Degree in social sciences and radio. He is planning to continue his education, but application awaits word from Uncle Sam.

MacLennan House Guest

A recent guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. William MacLennan was Mrs. A. J. Verhelle of Santa Barbara. She came to Carmel to seek information concerning the first Old Spanish Days Fiesta in Santa Barbara, which Mr. MacLennan planned and organized in 1924. She is planning to have a biography written, and was here to check on her work of that time.

Mrs. Verhelle was one of the committeemen in charge of Spanish dancing, and in the preparing of cascarones. Her grandfather, one of the rancheros during the Mexican period in California, assisted General Fremont in capturing Santa Barbara in 1846 by leading him over the San Marcos Pass trail, which was used very little at that time, while the Mexican forces were waiting for Fremont at Gaviota Pass 20 miles up the coast.

Carmel Work Center Weekly Notes...

By Carol Tindell

If you haven't already seen the driftwood candelabras made by Milton Williams... you should. Mr. Williams calls himself the "Beachcomber" and the name is fitting... for his creations at least. He gathers driftwood from the beach for the standards of the candelabras and fashions the candle holder of copper. Each piece is an original design for the driftwood suggests what the shape and design will be. We also are fortunate enough to have Mr. Williams' Beachcomber Lamps... which in part come out of the sea. These lamps... to be used inside or out... are made of copper and Japanese glass fishing floats. The warm copper color and the sea-green of the floats make a striking combination.

combination.

Blance Casey is another craftsman who takes her inspiration from the sea. She makes exquisite sea shells of pottery, glazing them in soft sea shades. They are beautiful used as a center piece with your floral arrangements... in fact they are beautiful used anywhere in the house. The Hippopus Shell happens to be just the right size to serve your seafood cocktails in (another good gift idea).

Stop in to see the work of these two outstanding craftsmen at either the shop in the Seven Arts Court or the Carmel Work Center at Pebble Beach. —Adv.

Cat Owners Are Warned Of Disease

Peninsula owners of cats and kittens are warned this week of what may become an epidemic of cat enteritis, following a number of cases which have already been reported.

There was an epidemic here last year, and most of the cases were traced directly to visitors from the Los Angeles area who brought their cats with them and stayed in auto and trailer courts.

The disease is often fatal, although in many cases a kitten may have been exposed to it and become immune. Cat owners are advised to check with their veterinarian for further information and advice.

LIONS' HALLOWEEN PARTY

At their Tuesday dinner meeting at Mission Ranch, the Carmel Lions set the date for their annual Halloween party for members' children and friends for Monday, October 30, so as not to conflict with the Kiwanis Halloween party October 31. Dr. William Caughlin heads the committee.

Press, Radiomen Are Guests Of Scouts

Twenty representatives of the press and radio from Monterey County toured, with officials of the Boy Scouts of America, to the Big Sur region to inspect the recently completed dirt road from the ranger's station up the Palo Colorado to their new camp on the north fork of Little Sur. The road was completed at a cost of $17,000.

Inclement weather prevented a larger group from attending the trek. Those attending were guests of the Scout leaders at luncheon.

SIERRA CLUBBERS ENJOY OUTING AT BIG SUR

Twenty-one members of the Sierra Club, their families and friends spent an enjoyable weekend at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park. Perfect hiking weather prevailed Sunday, when the visitors participated in a six mile hike along Lookout Ridge, west of the park. Lunch was eaten near the high point of the ridge, 1,000 feet above the park center. Although fog covered the ocean, a good view was had of the Big Sur Valley and mountains to the east. The club is planning another visit to this area next March.
